Christmas carols

God is being born

God is being born, the power is petrified

The Lord of Heaven is naked
The fire solidifies, the radiance darkens

The Eternal is bound by boundaries
Despised, covered with glory
Mortal King of the centuries

And the Word became flesh
And lived among us

In what are you better than the Earthlings, oh Heaven?
God has forsaken your happiness
He entered among [his] beloved people

Participating in its hardships and toils
He suffered not little, not little Because we are ourselves guilty

And the Word became flesh
And lived among us

Hush little Jesus

Hush little Jesus, my little pearl, Hush my favourite little delight.
Hush little Jesus, hush, hush
But you lovely mother, solace him in tears

Close your little eyelids, tired of weeping,
Solace the little lips, fainted from sobbing.
(Refrain)

Hush, our beautiful Angel.
Hush, you graceful little flower of the world.
(Refrain)

Hush, you most decorative little rose, Hush, you most comfortable little lily.
(Refrain)

Came to Bethlehem

Shepherds came to Bethlehem, had playing on the lyre for baby.

Glory in the highest, glory in the highest,
and peace on the Earth.

They bowed humbly.
For you with a willing heart, O
God!

Glory in the highest.

The angel of the Lord himself proclaimed these wonders, which they didn't heard like alive men.

Glory in the highest.

Christmas Eve and Christmas

Christmas in England begins on December 25. The English do not celebrate Christmas Eve, but instead celebrate Boxing Day, which is on December 26. This custom dates back to the Middle Ages, when money from piggy banks was distributed to the church to the poor. The custom of small money is still practiced today. Presents are put into previously prepared socks. The English often leave a glass of alcohol for St. Santa Claus and a carrot for the reindeer. The inhabitants of England are distinguished by the outfit of not only Christmas trees but also various lamps decorating the house. In the stories, Santa brings gifts to children by going up the chimney.

Dishes on the table

On Christmas Day, the English eat their meals in kroners made of paper. It is a symbol referring to the Magi. Contrary to the Polish supper, the householders sit down at the table around twelve o'clock. The dishes include turkey stuffed with various vegetables. Roasting a turkey itself takes the hosts about 4 hours. It is also accompanied by sausages wrapped in bacon. For dessert, the famous pudding is prepared, served with custard or brandy. According to the tradition, if someone wants to eat a pudding with a little alcohol, it is set on fire so that the fire scares away all misfortunes.

Instead of a wafer ...

Unfortunately, in England there is no tradition of sharing the wafer. Instead, the household tear apart Christmas Crackers, which are decorative paper 'candies'. Usually they are torn apart by two people and the tear is characterized by a loud explosion. This is due to the placement of a delicate chemical that activates when the packaging is destroyed. The interior of the candy is filled with small surprises in the form of a tiny dice or fortune-telling, which relax the atmosphere at the table.

The tradition is to dress the Christmas tree with the family. Everyone in December starts decorating the Christmas tree with colorful or subdued decorations, then there is a family and warm atmosphere.

Children have become a habit of leaving warm milk for Santa Claus and cookies on the table.

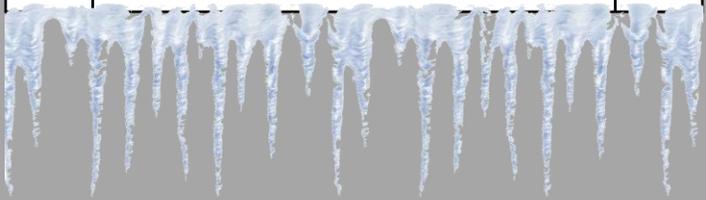

There are decorations on the fireplace through which Santa enters the houses and puts presents under the Christmas tree. Various Christmas socks in which Santa puts sweets and sometimes money, and if someone was naughty, he would receive a rod and decorated with chains all year round.

and a plate for the lost wanderer will always be found, most families are waiting for the stranger to entertain him.

Christmas decorations

Decorated Christmas trees and colorful lights are often combined all over the world. In the British Isles, additional decorations are cards hung on ropes and Christmas tree chains on the pages. At that time, Polish houses were quite well decorated, friends send each other a lot of greeting cards.
